GRAND JURY FREES TEETS IN BABB SHOOTING

TWO-DAY PROBE BRINGS RELEASE FOR COUNTIAN, 26

Indictment Refused After Farmer's Widow Tells Of Tragedy

DEATH "EXCUSABLE"

Walter Hart Indicted On Statutory Charge

John L. Teets, 26, unmarried son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Teets, Perry township, held for investigation on the shooting of Weldon J.
Babb, also of Perry township, was a free man Saturday.

The county grand jury, completing its investigation of the shooting, which occurred May 18, refused to return an indictment.

The shooting took place at the Teets home, located on the farm operated by Mr. Babb. It occurred after a quarrel in the Babb family during which Mrs. Babb was beaten. She sought refuge at the Teets home.

Mr. Babb followed her to the home and is alleged to have made threats before starting toward the residence. As Mr. Babb approached the house, Teets fired two charges at him with a 10-gauge shotgun.
Witnesses told officers Mr. Babb was carrying a flashlight, not lighted, and persons in the house believed it was a gun.

Termed "Excusable"
No charge had been filed against Teets. A verdict of "excusable homicide" was returned by Corner C. E. Bowers, who conducted an inquest in the case.

Walter Hart, 62, Logan street, was indicted on a statutory offense. Hart was arrested by city police under a charge filed by Allen Trego, Walnut street. Hart is alleged to have enticed Phyllis Trego, 7, into a barn by offering her money. Trego was notified about the act and gave Hart a severe beating.

The grand jury examined 18
witnesses during the two-day session, covering three cases. Two indictments were returned, the second one secret. It involved a non-support case.

Liquor-Hauler Fined $200, Sent to Jail for 100 Days

700 Filled Bottles Found in West Virginia Car
After Hit-Skip Wreck Late Friday Night;
City Officers Perform Splendid Job

BULLETIN

Jack Mulroy, 26, Wheeling, W. Va., admitted illegal transportation of liquor Saturday in a common pleas court hearing and was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 100 days in the county jail
by Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

The car he was driving and the liquor supply were ordered confiscated. The judge ordered Mulroy to remain in jail until the fine is settled.

The three others held by police for investigation were released.

Circleville's police department was doing a rushing sight-seeing business Saturday after making one of the largest confiscations of whiskey in many months.

Officers estimated they had at least 700 bottles of whiskey in cases, waste paper baskets, bushel baskets, a tub and other available containers around the department.

There were about 17 cases of liquor in addition to 11 other containers filled with bottles.

Four men were being held for investigation for state officers.
Those under arrest were: John Mulroy, 50, and two sons, Emmett, 21, and John, 26, known as Jack,
who gave their addresses as 36 Twentieth street, Wheeling, W.
Va., and Jimmie Thompson, 24,
of 1511 Chapman street, Wheeling.

To Escape State Tax
Policemen believe the whiskey was being hauled into Ohio to escape state tax.

Arrest of the men followed a hit-skip auto accident on Route 22, one mile west of the city about 11
p. m. The men were arrested about 5:30 a. m.

The Ford coupe bearing the liquor load collided with an auto driven by Virgil Boyzel, Darbyville, and failed to stop after the accident. No one was hurt in the mishap. Police were informed of the accident and were on the lookout for a damaged car.

About 5 a. m. officers were notified by Herb Johnson, watchman at the Pickaway Dairy, that a truck driver was inquiring about an auto that had been damaged in an accident.

Police arrested John Mulroy and Emmett Mulroy in the truck.
Later they were informed a wrecked car was parked near East Mound street.

Wrecked Car Found
Jack Mulroy and Jimmie Thompson were arrested when the wrecked car was found. Mulroy is said to have been the driver of the coupe. A front fender and tire were damaged.

The arrests were made by Patrolmen Alva Shasteen, Carl Radcliff and George Green. Firemen and other workers around the city building helped the officers unload the liquor.

Earlier in the week the night officers confiscated 40 gallons of illegal whiskey and arrested two Columbus negroes for federal authorities.

W.P.A. reports for the week ending May 26 show a total of 285 persons on the payroll, including 240 men and 45 women on fifteen projects. The report shows a reduction of 12 employees during the week.

A severe cut in employment figures will be shown on next week's report due to the temporary suspension of projects for women.

Ten Stoutsville women have obtained employment at the Esmeralda canning factory through the National Reemployment Service.

The National Reemployment Service will be closed Monday in observance of Decoration Day.

Two Cars Collide
Automobiles of Robert Nolan, electrician at the high school, and
S. W. Huffines, E. Main street shoe repairman, collided in E.
Main street, Friday afternoon, when Nolan backed away from the curbing.

Mr. Spence succeeds Harold Strous, who was named superintendent.

Maynard Campbell, of Perry township, son of Mrs. Florence Campbell, county recorder, was employed as fifth and sixth grade teacher. Mr. Campbell will complete his normal school work at Capital university in June.

Miss Mauna Lee Ferguson, Circleville Route 3, former teacher in the Ashville school, was employed as third and fourth grade teacher.

No definite action was taken by the Wayne township board Friday night.

DUKE, WALLY BELIEVED DEFINITELY EXCLUDED BY DECREE OF RULER

LONDON, May 29.—(UP)— King Georges decree according to the Duke of Windsor the title
"Royal Highness" has shoved both the duke and Mrs. Wallis Warfield, his wife to be, definitely out of British royal life.
First the decree specifically excluded Mrs. Warfield and any children born of the union to the title. But more important, the view was taken in usually well informed quarters that actually both king and government in the decree meant to make it plain that the duke himself—now officially an "outsider"—was given the title only as a courtesy for services rendered.

SALES TAX FUND LOWER BY $7,191 IN FIVE MONTHS

Sales tax collection in Pick-away county from Jan. 1 to May 15 was $7,191 below the amount reported for the same period in 1936, the state treasurer revealed Saturday. The lower figure is attributed to the fact that the tax on home-consumed foodstuffs is not collected this year as a result of the election last fall.

Pickaway county turned $38,940 into the state treasury up to May 1936, while only $31,749 was collected in 1937 up to May 15.

State Treasurer Clarence Knisley's collection figures show a gross yield of $17,615.159 this year as compared with $19,644,644 last year.

All other central Ohio counties showed reduced revenues. Some figures were: Fairfield, 1936, $89,- 916; 1937, $76,897; Fayette, 1936,
$46,653; 1937, $44,351; Ross, 1936,
$97,162; 1937, $83,587; Hocking, 1936, $29,335; 1937, $23,528.

which has surrounded his daughter's disappearance.

Charges; 13 Others

U. S. MAIL TRUCKS HALTED

Republic Co. Use Airplanes to Drop Workers' Food

BY UNITED PRESS

The Republic Steel Corporation used airplanes today to drop food supplies to non-striking workers isolated in plants surrounded by thousands of union pickets striking for a signed working contract.

Use of airplanes was necessary after strikers halted mail trucks carrying food which had been sent to the plants
by parcel post.

The strike of workers at plants of the three large independent steel producers — Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, and Inland Steel company — settled down to a grim siege. Strikers affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization insisted on union recognition, which the companies refused to grant on the ground that a signed contract would lead to a closed shop and would be unfair to workers and stockholders.

Plants were closed throughout northeastern Ohio, Indiana and in the Chicago area. State and federal mediators continued efforts—so far unsuccessful—to arrive at a peaceful settlement.

Riot in Chicago
In Chicago, police held three strikers on conspiracy charges following a street battle between 10 policemen and 1,000 strikers at the gates of the Republic plant. At least 13 strikers were injured.

Police in Buffalo redoubled vigilance at the Republic plant to prevent recurrence of violence last night in which police clashed with pickets.

More Liberal Trend Seen In Presbyterian Church

COLUMBUS, May 29. — (UP) — A definite trend towards more liberalism within the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. was foreseen today by delegates attending the denomination's 149th. general assembly in a decision upholding the right to preach of a pastor whose application for the ministry had been rejected because his theology was regarded as "too liberal."

With only a few dissenting votes the 900 commissioners, sitting as a judicial body, upheld the action of the Permanent Judicial Commission — "supreme court" of the church — ordering the Presbytery of Duluth to release William Van Dyken from its jurisdiction.

The presbytery, besides refusing Van Dyken a license, rejected his appeal for a transfer to another presbytery. Van Dyken then applied to the Presbytery of Black Hills, S. D., which granted him a license.

Case Finally Closed
The assembly's action definitely closes the case, allowing Van Dyken full preaching privileges.

The assembly also referred to the committee on bills and overtures a resolution submitted by the presbytery of North Philadelphia protesting passage by Congress of any measure that would make the U. S. Supreme Court or any other court "subservient to the executive or legislative branches of government."

The committee must report the resolution back to the general assembly, probably next Tuesday. Many delegates believed the resolution would not pass on the grounds it was not a matter within the assembly's jurisdiction.

The assembly approved a basic budget for 1937-1938 of $8,000,000. Reports showed all boards began 1937 without a deficit. In addition, about 90 per cent of the churches reported better results from their "every member canvass" this spring over the previous year.

Covert to Speak
Today's activities included a breakfast session of the "save the children fund of America, Inc.," addressed by Dr. William C. Cow-son 11:30 a. m.; Ladies' Aid, 10 p. m.; and Women's Home Missionary society, 1:30 p. m.

The eleventh annual Trinity Lutheran Bible school will open Monday, June 7, at 8:30 a. m. instead of June 2, as previously announced. This school is open to all boys and girls of age to 15, inclusive. There is no charge, the school being financed by the Lutheran Brotherhood.

"Building for Eternity" will be the subject of the Rev. G. L. Troutman's baccalaureate sermon Sunday evening. It begins at 8 o'clock.

The Rev. F. Henkelman, New Guinea missionary, will address the entire Lutheran Sunday school, Sunday morning. He will have charge of the morning service.

Lutheran church meetings next week will include:
Thursday, 7 p. m., junior choir practice; Thursday, 7:30 p. m., Bible school teacher meeting; Friday, 6:45 p. m., Sunday school teachers; Friday, 7:15 p. m., senior choir practice.

Devotional services at today's session were to be delivered by Dr. Clarence E. McCartney, Pittsburgh.

D. Hugh T. Kerr, Pittsburgh, told a special woman's session yesterday that a spread of fascism in this country would silence the church and "make it subservient to the state."

"It would put ministers of the gospel in concentration camps, muzzle the press and radio and rob us of our political and spiritual freedom," he said.

The Remaking of Jacob

As Jacob fled from the wrath of his brother Esau, he lay down and slept, and God gave him a vision of a ladder reaching up to heaven. God assured Jacob he would go with him and bless him.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Genesis 28:1-33:20, 28:16-22; 32:24-30.

Arriving at his Uncle Laban's home he fell in love with Rachel, his cousin, and they were married. He served Laban for twenty years and became very rich.

God called Jacob to return to his old home. But he was still fearful of Esau and made great schemes to placate him with rich gifts of flocks and herds.

Jacob needed to learn to trust in God. This he learned as he wrestled with God in prayer, and God changed his name to "Israel," meaning "Prince of God" (GOLDEN TEXT—Romans 12:2)

The Remaking of Jacob

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

BY ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 30 is Genesis 28:1-33:20, especially 28:16-22; 32:24-30, the Golden Text being Romans 12:2, "Be not fashioned according to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind.")

SINCE OUR Lord Jesus spoke of God as "the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob," and the psalmist says, "The God of Jacob is our refuge," we ought to know something about Jacob in order to know our God as we should.

At Bethel—The House of God

Jacob needed very much to be remade before God could make much use of him as a channel for his blessings for all nations. Jacob's name means "Supplanter" and he lived down to the level of his name in the intrigue and deceit by which he supplanted his brother Esau in the matter of his birthright. As a result he had to flee from Esau's wrath and go to Paden-Aram, his mother's old home, 450 miles away. The distance seemed to Jacob much farther, because he had no idea that God would follow him to so distant a place. En route to this "God forsaken place," as he considered it, Jacob dreamed he saw heaven opened to him with a ladder extending from where he lay up into the heavens, and with angels ascending and descending upon it. His God was not confined to his own country, but was with him on this journey, and heaven was friendly to him despite his unworthiness. God reiterated to him the promise made his fathers, "In thee and thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." So Jacob called the place of this religious experience "Bethel," meaning "House of God," saying, "Surely, the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not. This is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven." Our Lord likens himself to the ladder as God's means of connecting earth with heaven and providing us "the way," without whom no man cometh unto the Father.

At Mahanaim—The Host of God

After 20 years in Haran, during which his crafty uncle, Laban, paid him back in his own coin, God called Jacob to return home. But Jacob was still fearful of his brother's wrath, and set about planning to outwit Esau. At this juncture God appeared to Jacob again, revealing to him a spiritual host attending his own host and far outnumbering his own caravan. Jacob named the place "Mahanaim," meaning "two hosts". But instead of trusting to Gods hosts, Jacob continued to trust in his own devices and schemes for placating his brother with a series of gifts presented with profuse flattery.

At Peniel—The Face of God
On the eve of his reunion with Esau the Lord himself engaged Jacob in desperate conflict, in an effort to change his spirit and induce him to leave things to God instead of to his own craftiness. "And there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day. And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh; and the hollow of Jacob's thigh was strained, as he wrestled with him." Thus weakened physically, Jacob became strong spiritually. At last he surrendered to God! His nature was changed, and accordingly God changed his name from Jacob to Israel, meaning "Prince with God". Jacob called the place of his conversion "Peniel," meaning "Face of God", "for, said he, I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved." Does the "God of Jacob" have to cripple us to bring us to trust and obey?

FRIENDS FOR A CENTURY
THE people of the United States have no more important cause for gratitude than the fact that they have a friendly neighbor to the north. From the Atlantic to the Pacific along our northern boundary there are no Marginal lines, no sunken fortifications, no ramparts of stone and steel, no nervous and fearful garrisons. Thousands cross the line every day with a minimum of formalities and a spirit of friendship, and these conditions have existed for a century.
At Niagara Falls, Sunday, a committee representing both countries commemorated the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement between Great Britain and the United States, an agreement that cleared the border of forts and soldiers and established instead a bond of friendship that grows stronger with the years.
This celebration increases in significance when the relationship which it commemorates is compared with the situation in Europe, where neighboring nations live constantly under the shadow of war and the ascending sun of any bright morning may witness invading hordes swarming across a border.
Canada and the United States offer an example of the possibilities of friendliness between nations. One of our more cherished hopes is that this tie shall never be severed.

GOOD NEWS FROM KENT
AMERICANS will rejoice at the word that their distinguished fellow-citizens in exile, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh, are the parents of another boy, born in England. This is the best of news, the kind that makes the world akin and brings the better emotions surging to the heart.
It is rather interesting to observe, though, that Colonel Lindbergh continues in his rather awkward fashion to strive for quietude and isolation by vesting in an atmosphere of mystery and secrecy all that pertains to his own movements and the lives of the members of his family. Through his tactics he invites the attention which he so studiously seeks to avoid.
Colonel Lindbergh is entitled to live his own life, as are all other citizens. He might succeed in having this desire fulfilled if he would act normally instead of consistently following a course certain to intensify, rather than minimize, public interest.
Just why such a happy and welcome news as the birth of a baby should be shrouded in secrecy is rather difficult to understand.
People really do lose their memories, but seldom unless they are eager to lose somebody.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:
About the ville at an early hour, finding few on the streets and those few scurrying to appointed tasks. There goes a farmer in to buy repair parts for his cultivator and all asmile because for the last two days corn has grown with a rush. Wheat is made, say tillers of the soil, and practically the only thing that can prevent a bumper crop is wind that will lay it flat, or possibly hail. Drummers, who drop into the plant every day from all parts of the land, declare local crops are the best they have seen anywhere.
Milton Morris has his father and the scrivener and others of his friends agog. He will be graduated from high school in a few days and his father, Willie, told him: "Pick out the kind of an auto you wish and I will buy it for you." Milton replied that he has no use for an auto now and does not care for one. Wonder how many boys would have refused such a gift? I am certain I would not when I was a youngster.

Memorial Day is with us again, a day on which we pay our respects to our soldier dead. At this time we should mourn not only for those who lost their lives in battle, but for an alleged civilization that tolerates war. Legitimate excuses for war have become old-fashioned. No one doubts that we fought the Revolutionary War with reason, or that there was some slight excuse for the war of 1812 and that the Civil War had some justification. Some can be found who may think that our war with Spain to save Cuba was proper, but why did we fight the World War? The Mexican war was not forgotten. Those with even a smattering of history do not mention that conflict. Wars now are fought because a nation has a big army or thinks it needs more territory.
Noted in the paper recently that the numbers racket was to be wiped out locally, but so far only the very small fry have been frowned on by the law.
Suppose that is because the higher-ups are hard to reach, but did see one of the "big shots" in vicinity of city hall a time or two. But he probably was there to inspect the recent improvements.
We asked for hot weather and here it is. Well, the scrivener still thinks it better than zero weather and preferring swimming to skating. Here comes Chris Schwarz, the banker, with one of those new steel fly rods and turning it over for a tryout. Chris goes in for big bass and I have to be satisfied with the small ones, if any, so do prefer the lighter trout action, leaning toward bamboo. However, did take the banker's rod to the canal at 7:15 p. m. and pulled out a dozen big bluegills in 45 minutes. That's a record not yet equalled by the trout rod.
Home in the afternoon to prepare against a trip to Indianapolis where the speed merchants will be in action Monday in the annual 500 mile race. Have missed few of the big contests, regarding them as the greatest sport thrills of the year.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

HORDE TRYING TO PATCH FEUD

WASHINGTON — The virulent vendetta of the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. certainly has not lacked for peace makers. Thus far, however, the result of all their efforts has been exactly nil.
There have been almost as many ambitious zealots trying to arbitrate this feud as there were on Henry Ford's World War peace ship. Practically every leader in or connected with the labor movement has vainly tried his hand at bringing about harmony.
A variety of motives have prompted the would-be harmonizers. Some are sincerely disturbed by the split in labor ranks. Others are after glory. Still others are inspired by the desire to save their hides.
Prominent in the first group is Father Francis J. Haas, former NRA lieutenant of General Johnson, now a WPA labor adviser and one of the most popular and widely respected social workers in the country. Father Haas has the confidence of both factions and has earnestly tried to bring them together.
A leading glory seeker is Senator George L. Berry, who at the moment is trying to inveigle the White House into blessing his peace efforts. The Tennessean is head of the Pressmen's Union and in this role has been trying to carry water on both shoulders—to the private disgust of both camps.
The third group consists chiefly of A. F. of L. big - shots, including President Bill Green, now becoming increasingly worried over their own and the Federation's fate as the C. I. O. continues its member-grabbing sweep. Green has been doing a lot of public fulminating against John L. Lewis, but privately he is extremely anxious to come to terms.
At a recent secret meeting with Lewis he offered to divide labor territory, but the C. I. O. chief turned it down emphatically.

PEACE FORMULA

To all would-be arbiters and peace proposals the C.I.O. bosses have made the same reply:
"There can be peace overnight if the A. F. of L. will put into effect the minority report on industrial unionism presented to the 1935 convention."
This eight-paragraph declaration was rejected by the convention, an act that led directly to the setting up of the C. I. O. Heart of the report is this statement:
"It (the A. F. of L.) must recognize the right of workers to organize into industrial unions and be granted unrestricted charters which guarantee the right to accept into membership all workers employed in an industry, without fear of being compelled to destroy unity of action through recognition of jurisdictional claims made by national or international unions."
The policy enunciated in this paragraph is a direct blow at the traditional craft-unionism of the A. F. of L. If the declaration constitutes the minimum peace terms of the C. I. O., as they say it does, then that means there can be no truce between the C. I. O. and the Federation short of practically complete surrender of the A. F. of L.

Physicians Who Scare Folk Into Operations

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
MY OLD FRIEND, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, has been attending the meeting of the American College of Physicians.
"Every once in a while," he says, "you meet a fellow who is so clear headed and honest that he clears up a subject that has been lying around in your mind in a sort of muddled state, and there's a relief that comes with it like suddenly getting a tight shoe off."
That's what happened to me the other day when I went into a clinic on gall-bladder disease. It was by a surgeon, and you would think that surgeon would be in favor of operating. But not this one, and that is why he made such a hit with me. He said that when a gall-bladder gets actually inflamed it is dangerous to operate on the patient until the acute phase has subsided. So far as he knew, that was generally agreed among his professional colleagues.
"But recently," he said, "a certain surgeon had been crying 'Wolf!' and saying that there was danger of the gall-bladder perforating during acute inflammation, and that operation should be done immediately in order to prevent this. This surgeon reported that 34 per cent of his acute gall-bladder infections had perforated."
"Certainly a very high percentage and difficult to explain. In a series reported from the Mayo clinic, which notoriously has accurate statistics, the percentage of perforation of the gall-bladder was 15 of 1 per cent.
"The facts are, that if a patient comes to your office and you find he has an acutely inflamed gall-bladder, if you send him to the hospital in his car, there is less danger of his gall-bladder perforating than there is of his having an automobile accident on the way.
"Use Scare as Club
"Why do doctors allow themselves to say such scarehead things? Well, it isn't very creditable of them, but the real reason is that the only way they can persuade some of their patients to have an operation is to scare them into it. And they use this fear of a dangerous complication whether the facts justify the fear or not, as a club to beat the patient into submission.
"It is a bad practice," said Dr. Gibbs with some heat, "and should be exposed. People who exaggerate the dangers of a disease in order to get more operations should be drummed out of the profession."
There are several acute inflammations which occur inside the abdomen which are best not operated on during the acute stage because the patient is too much in shock. Besides the gall-bladder, there is acute inflammation of the tubes. When the acute stage has passed, it is safe to do the operation. The patient usually feels better then and wants to put it off. But he should remember that the attack is likely to recur and should co-operate with the surgeon and make such practices as Dr. Gibbs described unnecessary.

Love is for Tomorrow
By VIRGINIA SCALLON

READ THIS FIRST:
Sandy and Marcia met quite by accident near the home of the girl's grandmother in southern California. He is an advertising executive who has just established his own firm and she is a talented commercial artist. Both are on vacation. A week later it's romance and love. When they go to tell Grandma of their engagement, Marcia learns her office has been trying to reach her. Sandy is hurt when she calls Los Angeles before telling her grandmother of their love.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:
CHAPTER 7
"LET ME kiss you, Sandy," Grandma said promptly on hearing the news of the engagement. "I'm proud that we're to have you in our family. I couldn't have chosen better myself!" She smiled mischievously as they both recalled that events had, indeed, been in her own hands up until that time. "But what's the trouble? You're not jealous of Marcia's job, already? You know that's been her only love for so long, it's going to be hard to wean her away from it. Patience, it takes—and a heart full of love."
If Marcia had stepped into her role properly at that moment, the clouds would have passed. But when she bounded out into the little sun porch, her eyes were flaming with excitement, her head high in pride.
"Old Abe is trying to land a big account and he wants me to rush back and work up the art and even supervise copy. I'm to plan the campaign from start to finish, and I begin right away," she cried, happily. "Why, Sandy, I can go back with you."
She turned joyfully to the man, then stopped as if she'd been hit. "What is it—aren't you glad for me? Isn't everybody glad on this beautiful day? I get a real plum of an assignment, and find the Only Man . . . all in one afternoon. It's too—"
"Yes, it's too, too divine," he minced in a sarcastic tone. "Your job, then me. Is it always to be like that, Marcia? Because I'm a jealous cuss, and anything that comes between you and me—well, if it were a man I'd know what to do. But this—"
He spread his hands helplessly, then dropped his voice to a tone of pleading. "Come along, honey. Call up the old buzzard, and tell him you need this time to yourself, to get ready for our wedding day."
"But, Sandy, I can't. Why, this is the chance I've been waiting for. It means everything—"
"EVERYTHING, eh?" He laughed out at that, pacing the room nervously. "So that's the way it is," he continued, working himself into a frenzy.
"Marcia, you don't know anything about love except what you put in your gosh-darned ads," he blurted inelegantly. "You just turn it on when old Abe says 'allure' or 'romance'. You're probably the one who thought up the idea that 'He was fascinated until she opened her mouth' and—"
"And that's about enough from you. You opened your mouth too far that time, my fine feathered friend. You'd better fly home, before I get George's shot gun and puncture your ego!"
Sandy grabbed his hat and with-out a backward glance stalked out of the bright little room and then started on a fast dogtrot down the roadway.
"Sandy behaved like a school-boy," Marcia said a minute later, after she could collect her wits. "If he'd just held on for a minute we would have straightened the whole thing out. He can't expect me to fall into his arms like an over-ripe apple. Why, dozens of girls keep on working after they're married."
"Yes, but Sandy hasn't loved any of the dozens he has met," Grandma said sensibly. "He wants just one special woman, to fit his particular ideals of a wife."
"Well, he can't put me up on a pedestal with a lot of old fogies. What a 'bust' I'd be!" Marcia purred rather feebly. "If he'd waited to talk it over sensibly, I

Junior Class Entertains Graduates, Other Guests

160 Attend Banquet Held Friday Eve in Memorial Hall

The Memorial Hall auditorium presented a scene of youthful gaiety, Friday evening, when the junior class of Circleville high school entertained the members of the senior class at the traditional banquet.

The rainbow hues of the dainty gowns offered an ever-changing picture as the guests enjoyed the dancing during the late evening hours. The hall was decorated to represent a vineyard, trellises of yellow crepe paper from the balcony to the floor, separating the dance floor from the portion of the hall used as the dining room. Clusters of purple balloons were used to form the bunches of grapes.

A false ceiling of fringed festoons centered with a large drop-light pierced in a fanciful design, completed the decorations of the room. The background for the orchestra was formed of white screens with scroll designs showing a backing of black, with a center panel of silver. The small tables, were centered with vases of American Beauty rosebuds, the senior class flowers.

The place-cards were folders cut to form bunches of grapes, hand decorated by the committee from the junior class, comprised of Arabelle Thorne, Daphne Elliott and Betty Colville.

A three-course dinner was served at 7 o'clock by the members of the American Legion auxiliary. Immediately following the dinner, James Moffitt, president of the junior class, who served as "master of ceremonies," gave the address of welcome to the senior class. Miss Jessie Dresbach, president of the senior class, voiced the response of the seniors. The presentation of the officers of the senior class and the members of "Who's Who," followed. Mrs. Howard Moore, member of the board of education, offered a toast. Miss Margaret Mattinson, of

STOOGES ELECT PHILIP L. MOORE NEW PRESIDENT

Philip Moore was honored by fellow Stooges Tuesday, May 25, when he was elected president of the Stooge club for the 1937-38 term.

Philip, a junior, son of Mrs. Howard E. Moore, has been prominent in the high school for his technical staff work in high school dramatic production. He is also a member of the senior band.

His supporting officers are Dick Mader, vice-president; Frank Barnhill, secretary; Johnny Noggle, treasurer; and Dave Jackson, sergeant-at-arms. Virgil M. Cress will continue as the club's advisor.

Both Mr. Cress and the retiring officers are to be congratulated on their fine year of leadership, they are Raymond Adkins, president; Arthur Thorne, vice-president; Dick Mader, secretary; and Dave Jackson, treasurer.

In the past school year there have been many extra activities for which the Stooges should be given credit.

The most important of these is the project begun by the Stooges this spring for night game lights and additional bleachers on the athletic field. The annual benefit dance was a big step toward securing the lighting system planned.

Last fall the club was responsible for the Dads Day celebration at one of the football games. Red and black high school flags were made by the Stooges with the help of the home economics department. These flags are flown in front of business places in town on days when high school athletic teams are engaging in contests at home.

Shortly before Christmas vacation, the Stooges sponsored a Christmas carol sing in the halls in which all pupils took part.

The club also sponsored buses for pupils to go to the out-of-town basketball games.

The Stooge club without a doubt is one of the most progressive units in Circleville High School.

RED AND BLACK RANKS SECOND HONORS IN OHIO

Looking back over the year's work, the Red and Black was accredited second honors in a rating of high school newspapers by the college of journalism of Ohio State University.

Five consecutive issues were sent to the department to be graded and criticized. Any high school in Ohio was free to compete.

In the fall a check was made to ascertain what kind of news the students and teachers preferred. With this as a guide the paper adopted the most popular suggestions.

This year a new plan was followed. The editor-in-chief, was chosen only for four issues of the paper. Then his assistant took his place. In this way more students gained editing experience.

The editors in the order that they served were: William Ammer, Ruth Robinson, Eleanor Dreisbach, Helen Sayre, Mary Hays, Emily Gunning, William Ammer, Mary Newmyer, and Mary Jane Schiear.

The members of the class are: William Ammer, Dorothy Avis, Ruth Clark, Eleanor Dreisbach, Jessie Dresbach, Mary Hays, Marjorie Leach, Mary E. Maxey, Adabelle May, Mary Newmyer, Ruth Robinson, Helen Sayre, Mary Jane Schiear, and Benedine Yates.

As these three columns complete the thirty-sixth issue of the Red and Black during the current school year, the publication of this weekly project by the journalism class of Circleville high school ends the tenth year of its existence.

Published by a group of fifteen students, the Red and Black is a department of The Circleville Herald.

FUNDAMENTALS have to be observed even on the simplest hand, or grief can ensue. About the most important mistake that a declarer can perpetrate is to do things in the wrong order—that is, do something first which should be done later.

North's opening bid was 1-No Trump, which East passed and South called 3-Spades. After North's assist in that suit, South went to 6-Spades.

The declarer, ordinarily a very fine player, saw immediately that the contract was perfectly safe, for the hand contained only two losers in diamonds, one of which could be tossed on a high club.

With this wealth of high cards, he got careless and proceeded to make his contract in the wrong way. He won the opening lead of the diamond K with his diamond Ace, cashed his club Q, led the club 5 to the club Ace, and then the club K, with the idea of tossing one diamond loser away. East thereupon trumped the club K, forcing South to overruff, and after that there was no possible way to get rid of the two losing diamonds.

The very simple procedure was to have drawn trumps first and then planned for the discard of the diamond on the club K. All of which proves that even the finest players in a careless moment can toss away a sure contract with as great ease as the average player.

NATION'S BUILDING INDUSTRY ENABLED TO COVER SMALL FIELD HOUSE

Marketability of House Aided By Adequate Bathroom Space

Our ideas of bathrooms have changed in the last two or three decades, both as to the number required and the finish and equipment of the rooms themselves. Many houses that are otherwise completely livable and structurally sound lack sufficient modern bath conveniences to be eligible for financing under the terms of the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration.

houses have small rooms or large closets that can be converted or some of the excess hall space may be used to create an additional bathroom.

FLORIDA RESIDENTIAL PERMITS AVERAGE 42'

MIAMI, Fla.—Building officials have announced that the construction value of permits issued in this area from the first of the year through April 30 total $7,240,522. Residential permits have averaged 42 a week during that time, officials said.

Wide Mart Available For Homes

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29 — By popularizing the application of the principles of installment selling to the home building field, through the amortized mortgage, the Federal Housing Administration has enabled the residential building industry to engage in comparatively large-scale operations and to tap, for the first time, the market for small houses costing less than $5,000.

Because the Insured Mortgage System does make possible large-scale activities in the subdivision field, the Federal Housing Administration must limit its approval to those neighborhoods for which there is an immediate and definite demand. Only in this way can it exert a proper influence in preventing overproduction and over-expansion.

Insurance Limited
The position of the Federal Housing Administration may seem anomalous to some people. It must be remembered, however, that the insurance of mortgages is limited, under the terms of the National Housing Act, to those projects which are economically sound. The insurance of loans in neighborhoods which are not ripe for development—for which there is no immediate demand—would not be sound procedure, and such projects are, automatically, eliminated from consideration.

While some people may feel that the Federal Housing Administration is stifling the natural growth of the building industry by exercising this influence over the development of new subdivisions, the subdivision activities of the Administration, are, in reality, a definite stimulus to the sound development of home construction activities.

Aiding Industry
The administration is aiding the industry to regain the confidence of the buying public which was destroyed during the 1920's, by the activities of "jerry" builders and land speculators. By proceeding cautiously in its approval of new subdivisions, and withholding its approval until they are ready for orderly development, the administration discourages the type of activities which so nearly destroyed the confidence of the buying public in the integrity of the building industry.

By the same means it reduces the possibility of unethical competition and aids ethical builders to operate without fear of this type of competition.

For these reasons the administration is holding firmly to its policy of "making haste slowly." It realizes that the building industry must progress carefully if it is to regain the confidence of the buying public.

COPPER, BRASS SALES INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Sales of copper and brass tubing during the first quarter of 1937 are estimated at 35,000,000 pounds, according to the Journal of Commerce, a record over any preceding year. The fact that building figures as a whole for the same period represent less than the total for 1929 and yet the usage of copper and brass tubing has increased indicates, the Journal believes, that builders are using more permanent materials to meet the new demand for standard construction in houses.

Questions and Answers

Q. Every time we have a heavy rain the water seeps through the concrete block foundation of our house and causes a damp unpleasant condition in the cellar. Can you suggest some way this can be corrected from the inside? We whitewashed the walls hoping this would correct it, but it does not.

A. Waterproof your cellar from the inside by cleaning down the walls, removing all whitewashing and leaving the blocks exposed, then have a coating of metallic waterproofing placed on the inside of the wall with a 3/4-inch coating of rich cement plaster about 1 to 3 mix. If the floor leaks as well, this treatment should be carried across the floor in one continuous operation. This work should be done by experienced operators so it would be advisable to employ a firm that makes a specialty of it.

Q. How should a new hard pine floor be finished?

A. This depends on the type and use to which the floor is put. Before any finish is applied, the floor should be properly planed or sanded. If the floor is to be darkened to harmonize more perfectly with the furnishings, a penetrating stain should be applied. The stained floor should dry and be kept free from dust for 24 hours before varnish or wax coats are applied. If the floor is to have hard usage and is flat-grained, a good floor varnish should be used. If it is comb-grained, it can be stained, filled, and waxed, or it can be finished with a floor varnish as described above. Pine floors may also be painted, preferably with at least two coats and then waxed.

Q. Can anything be done to stop the decay of wood once it has started to rot?

A. Only the complete removal of the rotted wood can save the remaining wood. If the decay is caused by dry rot which is a fungus that will spread, the infected wood must be cut out completely and destroyed. When the decay is caused by dampness, after the rotted wood is removed and replaced. The cause of the dampness should be stopped or only wood treated with preservatives should be used for replacements.

Q. My bathroom wall is plastered and we want to finish it with tile. Is it necessary to remove the plaster first?

A. Yes. All the plaster should be removed to the height of the tile. The tile should only be applied on a good grade of metal lath over wood stud partitions. If the walls are of masonry, the entire surface should be cleaned preferably with a chemical before attempting to apply the tile.

Q. The flue from my kitchen coal stove will not draw. It connects into the main furnace chimney flue which is plenty large enough to dispose of smoke from both. Something must be wrong. Can you tell me what it might be?

A. Your trouble lies in the fact that you have connected your kitchen flue into one already used. It is against the principles of good chimney construction to connect more than one opening into each flue. To avoid your difficulty, a separate flue must be constructed, either in a new chimney, or in a corbelled upper portion of the present one, or if the present main flue is very large, it may be possible to divide it into two separate flues. It is advisable to consult a competent heating man.

Bracing of Home Carefully Checked by F H A Officials

When a home is being built in a part of the country subject to violent windstorms, the bracing of the house is of particular importance. It is always carefully checked by Federal Housing Administration inspectors when the financing is under the Insured Mortgage System.

Proper bracing of a frame building is most important. If the exterior walls are to be sheathed, they may be braced most effectively by putting the sheathing in diagonally and thoroughly nailing it to the studs. Such placement of the sheathing is two to four times as effective as horizontal sheathing. Long, continuous braces let into the faces of the studs and thoroughly nailed to them will increase the rigidity of a horizontally sheathed wall to such an extent that it will compare favorably with a diagonally sheathed wall. Braces cut on a bevel and nailed in between the studs on a line are not so effective as continuous braces. If used at all corners, however, and made as long as the let-in braces, they will increase the rigidity of a horizontally sheathed wall about 50 percent. So-called "bridge" or "herringbone" bracing placed at mid-story height does not increase the rigidity of a wall to an extent which would justify the expense of putting it in for this purpose.

Wood lath and plaster is more rigid than many types of sheathing or sheathing and bracing. Under normal conditions plaster may furnish all the rigidity required for most purposes. However, as the plaster begins to crack from shrinkage, settlement, or other causes the rigidity of the sheathing comes more and more into play. Thus, in violent winds or earthquakes, it is the sheathing and bracing that become all important in preventing complete destruction. It is logical, too, that slightly more bracing than is needed to resist ordinary distorting influences will in the long run more than pay for itself through diminishing, if not entirely eliminating, maintenance costs that result from the structure getting out of alignment.

It is also important that the building be thoroughly tied to resist the thrust of the rafters. When it is not feasible to tie the building together at the foot of the rafters, the thrust may be transferred to the end walls by a system of diagonal bracing on the

NEW PLASTER WALLS SHOULD BE WELL - DRIED

Plaster walls in a new house should not be finished for several months if they are to dry thoroughly. Because the frame of a house settles and shrinks during the first few months, cracks will show up in the best job of plastering, and these will be accentuated if the walls are finished.

Damp spots are likely to appear when the moisture forces itself from the plaster, and if the surface has been finished they will have to be retouched, resulting in spotty walls. Paper will peel and discolor when the plaster has not been dried thoroughly.

Construction is carefully checked when a house is financed under the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration, but the finishing of the walls is left to the discretion of the owner.

COLOR NOTE ACCENTS MODERN FURNITURE

Many pieces of the light-hued modern furniture have touches of paint decoration along the edge of the top of a bureau or bed, on the handles of a chest of drawers, etc. In decorating the bedroom in which this furniture is to be used the color is carried out in the trim, using off-white or a light tint for the walls.

The choice of many interior decorative effects may be made by the prospective owner of a home financed under the insured mortgage plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

GRAND JURY FREES TEETS IN BABB SHOOTING

TWO-DAY PROBE BRINGS RELEASE FOR COUNTIAN, 26

Indictment Refused After Farmer's Widow Tells Of Tragedy

DEATH "EXCUSABLE"

Walter Hart Indicted On Statutory Charge

John L. Teets, 26, unmarried son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Teets, Perry township, held for investigation on the shooting of Weldon J. Babb, also of Perry township, was a free man Saturday.

The county grand jury, completing its investigation of the shooting, which occurred May 18, refused to return an indictment.

The shooting took place at the Teets home, located on the farm operated by Mr. Babb. It occurred after a quarrel in the Babb family during which Mrs. Babb was beaten. She sought refuge at the Teets home.

Mr. Babb followed her to the home and is alleged to have made threats before starting toward the residence. As Mr. Babb approached the house, Teets fired two charges at him with a 10-gauge shotgun. Witnesses told officers Mr. Babb was carrying a flashlight, not lighted, and persons in the house believed it was a gun.

Termed "Excusable"

No charge had been filed against Teets. A verdict of "excusable homicide" was returned by Coroner C. E. Bowers, who conducted an inquest in the case.

Walter Hart, 62, Logan street, was indicted on a statutory offense. Hart was arrested by city police under a charge filed by Allen Trego, Walnut street. Hart is alleged to have enticed Phyllis Trego, 7, into a barn by offering her money. Trego was notified about the act and gave Hart a severe beating.

The grand jury examined 18 witnesses during the two-day session, covering three cases. Two indictments were returned, the second one secret. It involved a non-support case.

Liquor-Hauler Fined $200, Sent to Jail for 100 Days

700 Filled Bottles Found in West Virginia Car After Hit-Skip Wreck Late Friday Night; City Officers Perform Splendid Job

BULLETIN

Jack Mulroy, 26, Wheeling, W. Va., admitted illegal transportation of liquor Saturday in a common pleas court hearing and was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 100 days in the county jail by Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

The car he was driving and the liquor supply were ordered confiscated. The judge ordered Mulroy to remain in jail until the fine is settled.

The three others held by police for investigation were released.

Circleville's police department was doing a rushing night-seeing business Saturday after making one of the largest confiscations of whiskey in many months.

Officers estimated they had at least 700 bottles of whiskey in cases, waste paper baskets, bushel baskets, a tub and other available containers around the department.

There were about 17 cases of liquor in addition to 11 other containers filled with bottles.

Four men were being held for investigation for state officers. Those under arrest were: John Mulroy, 50, and two sons, Emmett, 21, and John, 28, known as Jack, who gave their addresses as 36 Twentieth street, Wheeling, W. Va., and Jimmie Thompson, 24, of 1511 Chapman street, Wheeling.

To Escape State Tax

Police believe the whiskey was being hauled into Ohio to escape state tax.

Arrest of the men followed a hit-skip auto accident on Route 22, one mile west of the city about 11 p.m. The men were arrested about 5:30 a.m.

The Ford coupe bearing the liquor load collided with an auto driven by Virgil Boyzel, Darbyville, and failed to stop after the accident. No one was hurt in the mishap. Police were informed of the accident and were on the lookout for a damaged car.

About 5 a.m. officers were notified by Herb Johnson, watchman at the Pickaway Dairy, that a truck driver was inquiring about an auto that had been damaged in an accident.

Police arrested John Mulroy and Emmett Mulroy in the truck. Later they were informed a wrecked car was parked near East Mound street.

Wrecked Car Found

Jack Mulroy and Jimmie Thompson were arrested when the wrecked car was found. Mulroy is said to have been the driver of the coupe. A front fender and tire were damaged.

The arrests were made by Patrolmen Alva Shastent, Carl Radcliff and George Green. Firemen and other workers around the city building helped the officers unload the liquor.

Earlier in the week the night officers confiscated 40 gallons of illegal whiskey and arrested two Columbus negroes for federal authorities.

W. P. A. PAYROLL REDUCED TO 285 FOR LAST WEEK

W.P.A. reports for the week ending May 26 show a total of 285 persons on the payroll, including 240 men and 45 women on fifteen projects. The report shows a reduction of 12 employees during the week.

A severe cut in employment figures will be shown on next week's report due to the temporary suspension of projects for women.

Ten Stoutsville women have obtained employment at the Esmeralda cannery factory through the National Reemployment Service. The National Reemployment Service will be closed Monday in observance of Decoration Day.

TWO CARS COLLIDE

Automobiles of Robert Nolan, electrician at the high school, and S. W. Huffines, E. Main street shoe repairman, collided in E. Main street, Friday afternoon, when Nolan backed away from the curb.

No definite action was taken by the Wayne township board Friday night.

DUKE, WALLY BELIEVED DEFINITELY EXCLUDED BY DECREE OF RULER

LONDON, May 29.—(UP)—King Georges decree according to the Duke of Windsor the title "Royal Highness" has shored both the duke and Mrs. Wallis Warfield, his wife to be, definitely out of British royal life.

First the decree specifically excluded Mrs. Warfield and any children born of the union to the title. But more important, the view was taken in usually well informed quarters that actually both king and government in the decree meant to make it plain that the duke himself—now officially an "outsider"—was given the title only as a courtesy for services rendered.

SALES TAX FUND LOWER BY $7,191 IN FIVE MONTHS

Sales tax collection in Pickaway county from Jan. 1 to May 15 was $7,191 below the amount reported for the same period in 1936, the state treasurer revealed Saturday. The lower figure is attributed to the fact that the tax on home-consumed foodstuffs is not collected this year as a result of the election last fall.

Pickaway county turned $38,940 into the state treasury up to May 1936, while only $31,749 was collected in 1937 up to May 15.

State Treasurer Clarence Knisley's collection figures show a gross yield of $17,615,159 this year as compared with $19,644,644 last year.

All other central Ohio counties showed reduced revenues. Some figures were: Fairfield, 1936, $89,916; 1937, $76,897; Fayette, 1936, $46,653; 1937, $44,351; Ross, 1936, $97,162; 1937, $83,587; Hocking, 1936, $29,335; 1937, $23,528.

REWARD OF $500 SET FOR CO-ED BY HER PARENTS

CLEVELAND, May 29.—(UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Baumgardner today offered a $500 reward for information resulting in the finding of their daughter, Ruth Elizabeth, who disappeared May 4, from Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, O.

About 5,000 circulars carrying notice of the reward were mailed today by the Burns Detective agency to police departments and sheriffs' offices in every part of the country, to every office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to leading hotels, and to the post office department for posting in smaller postoffices.

The reward expires July 1, 1937. Baumgardner said he was induced to offer the reward by the hope that some clue would be developed to clear up the mystery which has surrounded his daughter's disappearance.

NEW TAX ACTION FEARED AS F. D. ALTERS TACTICS

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(UP)—Sudden reversal by President Roosevelt of his legislative strategy today headed congress toward a crowded summer schedule likely to bring new tax legislation and crowd the controversial judicial reorganization program into the background.

Latest addition to a fast-lengthening presidential legislative program was Mr. Roosevelt's proposal for congressional study and legislation to end "high bracket" income tax avoidance. Once the tax question is opened, congressional leaders admitted, there are prospects of widespread dispute and tax legislative attempts of many sorts.

Efforts to broaden the tax question will come from several sources. Sen. Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., P. Wis., announced that he would seek on any tax measure coming before congress as medium for making a new drive for his proposed broadening of the income tax base. Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D. Va., made known intentions of supporting a similar program.

DAVEY TO CALL LEGISLATORS FOR JUNE 21 SESSION

COLUMBUS, May 29.—(UP)—Governor Davey indicated today he would call the legislature into special session "about June 21" to pass the general biennial appropriations bill which met defeat in the regular sessions.

The special call, he said, will be solely for consideration of the budget bill and not for relief financing.

POLICE AND 1,000 MEN BATTLE IN CHICAGO STREET

Three to Face Conspiracy Charges; 13 Others Receive Injuries

U. S. MAIL TRUCKS HALTED

Republic Co. Use Airplanes to Drop Workers' Food

BY UNITED PRESS

The Republic Steel Corporation used airplanes today to drop food supplies to non-striking workers isolated in plants surrounded by thousands of union pickets striking for a signed working contract.

Use of airplanes was necessary after strikers halted mail trucks carrying food which had been sent to the plants by parcel post.

The strike of workers at plants of the three large independent steel producers—Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, and Inland Steel company—settled down to a grim siege. Strikers affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization insisted on union recognition, which the companies refused to grant on the ground that a signed contract would lead to a closed shop and would be unfair to workers and stockholders.

Plants were closed throughout northeastern Ohio, Indiana and in the Chicago area. State and federal mediators continued efforts—so far unsuccessful—to arrive at a peaceful settlement.

Riot in Chicago

In Chicago, police held three strikers on conspiracy charges following a street battle between 10 policemen and 1,000 strikers at the gates of the Republic plant. At least 13 strikers were injured.

Police in Buffalo redoubled vigilance at the Republic plant to prevent recurrence of violence last night in which police clashed with pickets.

MADISON LODGE INITIATES CLASS IN I. O. O. F. HALL

Remodeling of the lodge and social rooms of Columbia Lodge, No. 32, I. O. O. F., has added new life to the organization. In recent weeks many reinstatements have been made and new members initiated.

The first degree work was exemplified Friday evening by the degree staff of Madison Lodge, No. 70, of London, under the captaincy of Donald Rea. Visitors included District Deputy Grand Master W. E. Craig, W. N. DeWesse and C. A. Kearney, all of Lodge No. 277, of Washington, C. H.

In two weeks the second degree will be conferred and more reinstatements are expected.

The general remodeling included new steel ceilings, redecoration of the walls, new hardwood floors, new lighting fixtures in the lodge, social rooms, dining room and kitchen.

APPOINTMENTS LISTED

Pickaway Joins With Seven Others in Expense

Renick Dunlap, general chairman of the campaign, sponsored by the Circleville Kiwanis Club, to enroll sustaining members for the Boy Scout movement in Pickaway county, today announced the following committees for the drive. The special gifts committee, which has already started to function, consists of Dwight Steele, chairman, L. M. Mader, Reed Shafer, Marvin G. Steele, Elster Copeland, and Harold Grant. Tom Renick was appointed auditing committee chairman. The solicitations committee is comprised of Claude Kraft, chairman, Frank Barnhill, Carl Leist, Mack Parrett, and Roy N. Beatty.

To Open Next Week
The campaign which seeks to raise $600 in the Pickaway district to finance its share of the operating expense of the Central Ohio Area Council, which administers scouting here, will be opened next week. A special meeting for all workers will be held to formally launch the drive.

The Kiwanis Club, which is giving leadership to the campaign, will enlist support from Scouters and other men of Circleville and surrounding communities generally interested in youth work. James I. Smith, Jr., chairman of the Pickaway district Boy Scout committee, today paid tribute to the Club community service in undertaking the sponsorship of the drive, which will make local Scout work possible for another year.

County One of Eight
As one of the eight counties constituting the Central Ohio Area Council, which maintains an office and provides professional guidance and supervision for volunteer leaders, Pickaway county will participate this year in sharing the cost of this valuable work. Expenditure of all funds obtained for the local council is controlled by the Executive Board, of which Jim Smith, Reed Shafer, and Renick Dunlap are members.

Big Melon Crop

If the weather is favorable, not too hot, dry, wet or cold; the bugs not too bad and numerous; the blight not too destructive and the weeds not too thick, the prospects may be fine for a melon crop this year. This was the opinion we found when just listening to a bunch of wise and experienced melon growers at Grove & Rhodes store this morning. With Dick Hedges, Eddie Irwin, Frank Grace, the Bausums and a few others growing good sized patches and they (the melons not the growers) do well, everybody in these parts ought to get their fill of melons once. According to their statement, there are between 30 and 40 acres planted to this fruit or vegetable. Which? Twelve hundred hills to the acre, the boys say and an acreage of four good melons to the hill. Figure the profits yourself. "If," and this it has been a bad actor for the melon growers the last two years.

AT THE CIRCLE

Samuel Goldwyn's most ambitious production, the screen version of Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth," which thrilled millions as a best selling novel and a smash stage hit, begins a two day engagement at the Circle Theatre Sunday.

Walter Huston repeats the title role he created and played for more than two years on the stage. Ruth Chatterton appears opposite him, while Paul Lukas, Mary Astor and David Niven are also prominently featured.

Sidney Howard, who made the absorbing and dramatic story of a hard working, easy going American husband who retired to travel and find himself, but instead found out his selfish, frivolous wife, also wrote the screen-play.

Another way to avoid suffering from the heat is to get a thermometer that registers about 19 degrees too low.

FRIENDS FOR A CENTURY

THE people of the United States have no more important cause for gratitude than the fact that they have a friendly neighbor to the north. From the Atlantic to the Pacific along our northern boundary there are no Marginal lines, no sunken fortifications, no ramparts of stone and steel, no nervous and fearful garrisons. Thousands cross the line every day with a minimum of formalities and a spirit of friendship, and these conditions have existed for a century.

At Niagara Falls, Sunday, a committee representing both countries commemorated the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement between Great Britain and the United States, an agreement that cleared the border of forts and soldiers and established instead a bond of friendship that grows stronger with the years.

This celebration increases in significance when the relationship which it commemorates is compared with the situation in Europe, where neighboring nations live constantly under the shadow of war and the ascending sun of any bright morning may witness invading hordes swarming across a border.

Canada and the United States offer an example of the possibilities of friendliness between nations. One of our more cherished hopes is that this tie shall never be severed.

GOOD NEWS FROM KENT

AMERICANS will rejoice at the word that their distinguished fellow-citizens in exile, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh, are the parents of another boy, born in England. This is the best of news, the kind that makes the world akin and brings the better emotions surging to the heart.

It is rather interesting to observe, though, that Colonel Lindbergh continues in his rather awkward fashion to strive for quietude and isolation by vesting in an atmosphere of mystery and secrecy all that pertains to his own movements and the lives of the members of his family. Through his tactics he invites the attention which he so studiously seeks to avoid.

Colonel Lindbergh is entitled to live his own life, as are all other citizens. He might succeed in having this desire fulfilled if he would act normally instead of consistently following a course certain to intensify, rather than minimize, public interest.

Just why such a happy and welcome news as the birth of a baby should be shrouded in secrecy is rather difficult to understand.

People really do lose their memories, but seldom unless they are eager to lose somebody.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

About the ville at an early hour, finding few on the streets and those few scurrying to appointed tasks. There goes a farmer in to buy repair parts for his cultivator and all asmile because for the last two days corn has grown with a rush. Wheat is made, say tillers of the soil, and practically the only thing that can prevent a bumper crop is wind that will lay it flat, or possibly hail. Drummers, who drop into the plant every day from all parts of the land, declare local crops are the best they have seen anywhere.

Milton Morris has his father and the scrivener and others of his friends agog. He will be graduated from high school in a few days and his father, Willie, told him: "Pick out the kind of an auto you wish and I will buy it for you." Milton replied that he has no use for an auto now and does not care for one. Wonder how many boys would have refused such a gift? I am certain I would not when I was a youngster.

Memorial Day is with us again, a day on which we pay our respects to our soldier dead. At this time we should mourn not only for those who lost their lives in battle, but for an alleged civilization that tolerates war. Legitimate excuses for war have become old-fashioned. No one doubts that we fought the Revolutionary War with reason, or that there was some slight excuse for the war of 1812 and that the Civil War had some justification. Some can be found who may think that our war with Spain to save Cuba was proper, but why did we fight the World War? The Mexican war was not forgotten. Those with even a smattering of history do not mention that conflict. Wars now are fought because a nation has a big army or thinks it needs more territory.

Noted in the paper recently that the numbers racket was to be wiped out locally, but so far only the very small fry have been frowned on by the law.

Suppose that is because the higher-ups are hard to reach, but did see one of the "big shots" in vicinity of city hall a time or two. But he probably was there to inspect the recent improvements.

We asked for hot weather and here it is. Well, the scrivener still thinks it better than zero weather and preferring swimming to skating. Here comes Chris Schwarz, the banker, with one of those new steel fly rods and turning it over for a tryout. Chris goes in for big bass and I have to be satisfied with the small ones, if any, so do prefer the lighter trout action, leaning toward bamboo. However, did take the banker's rod to the canal at 7:15 p. m. and pulled out a dozen big bluegills in 45 minutes. That's a record not yet equalled by the trout rod.

Home in the afternoon to prepare against a trip to Indianapolis where the speed merchants will be in action Monday in the annual 500 mile race. Have missed few of the big contests, regarding them as the greatest sport thrills of the year.

HORDE TRYING TO PATCH FEUD

WASHINGTON — The virulent vendetta of the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. certainly has not lacked for peace makers. Thus far, however, the result of all their efforts has been exactly nil.

There have been almost as many ambitious zealots trying to arbitrate this feud as there were on Henry Ford's World War peace ship. Practically every leader in or connected with the labor movement has vainly tried his hand at bringing about harmony.

A variety of motives have prompted the would-be harmonizers. Some are sincerely disturbed by the split in labor ranks. Others are after glory. Still others are inspired by the desire to save their hides.

Prominent in the first group is Father Francis J. Haas, former NRA lieutenant of General Johnson, now a WPA labor adviser and one of the most popular and widely respected social workers in the country. Father Haas has the confidence of both factions and has earnestly tried to bring them together.

A leading glory seeker is Senator George L. Berry, who at the moment is trying to inveigle the White House into blessing his peace efforts. The Tennessean is head of the Pressmen's Union and in this role has been trying to carry water on both shoulders—to the private disgust of both camps.

The third group consists chiefly of A. F. of L. big-shots, including President Bill Green, now becoming increasingly worried over their own and the Federation's fate as the C. I. O. continues its member-grabbing sweep. Green has been doing a lot of public fulminating against John L. Lewis, but privately he is extremely anxious to come to terms.

At a recent secret meeting with Lewis he offered to divide labor territory, but the C. I. O. chief turned it down emphatically.

PEACE FORMULA

To all would-be arbiters and peace proposals the C. I. O. bosses have made the same reply:

"There can be peace overnight if the A. F. of L. will put into effect the minority report on industrial unionism presented to the 1935 convention."

This eight-paragraph declaration was rejected by the convention, an act that led directly to the setting up of the C. I. O. Heart of the report is this statement:

"It (the A. F. of L.) must recognize the right of workers to organize into industrial unions and be granted unrestricted charters which guarantee the right to accept into membership all workers employed in an industry, without fear of being compelled to destroy unity of action through recognition of jurisdictional claims made by national or international unions."

The policy enunciated in this paragraph is a direct blow at the traditional craft-unionism of the A. F. of L. If the declaration constitutes the minimum peace terms of the C. I. O., as they say it does, then that means there can be no truce between the C. I. O. and the Federation short of practically complete surrender of the A. F. of L.

Physicians Who Scare Folk Into Operations

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
 MY OLD FRIEND, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, has been attending the meeting of the American College of Physicians.

Dr. Clendening

"Every once in a while," he says, "you meet a fellow who is so clear headed and honest that he clears up a subject that has been lying around in your mind in a sort of muddled state, and there is a relief that comes with it like suddenly getting a tight shoe off."

"That's what happened to me the other day when I went into a clinic on gall-bladder disease. It was by a surgeon, and you would think that surgeon would be in favor of operating. But not this one, and that is why he made such a hit with me. He said that when a gall-bladder gets actually inflamed it is dangerous to operate on the patient until the acute phase has subsided. So far as he knew, that was generally agreed among his professional colleagues."

"But recently, he said, a certain surgeon had been crying 'Wolf!' and saying that there was danger of the gall-bladder perforating during acute inflammation, and that operation should be done immediately in order to prevent this. This surgeon reported that 34 per cent of his acute gall-bladder infections had perforated."

"Certainly a very high percentage and difficult to explain. In a series reported from the Mayo clinic, which notoriously has accurate statistics, the percentage of perforation of the gall-bladder was 1/2 of 1 per cent.

"The facts are, that if a patient comes to your office and you find he has an acutely inflamed gall-bladder, if you send him to the hospital in his car, there is less danger of his gall-bladder perforating than there is of his having an automobile accident on the way."

Use Scare as Club

"Why do doctors allow themselves to say such scarehead things? Well, it isn't very creditable of them, but the real reason is that the only way they can persuade some of their patients to have an operation is to scare them into it. And they use this fear of a dangerous complication whether the facts justify the fear or not, as a club to beat the patient into submission."

"It is a bad practice," said Dr. Gibbs with some heat, "and should be exposed. People who exaggerate the dangers of a disease in order to get more operations should be drummed out of the profession."

"There are several acute inflammations which occur inside the abdomen which are best not operated on during the acute stage because the patient is too much in shock. Besides the gall-bladder, there is acute inflammation of the tubes. When the acute stage has passed, it is safe to do the operation. The patient usually feels better then and wants to put it off. But he should remember that the attack is likely to recur and should co-operate with the surgeon and make such practices as Dr. Gibbs described unnecessary."

A TURKISH LEGEND

A certain Pasha, dead five thousand years, Once from his harem fled in sudden tears,

And had this sentence on the city's gate Deeply engraven, "Only God is great."

So these four words above the city's noise Hung like the accents of an angel's voice.

And evermore, from the high baccan, Saluted each returning caravan.

Lost in that city's glory. Every gust Lifted, with dead leaves, the unknown Pasha's dust,

And all is ruin—save one wrinkled gate Whereon is written, "Only God is great."

In the darriestest tomb of lovers. —Joaquin Miller.

READ THIS FIRST:
 Sandy and Marcia met quite by accident near the home of the girl's grandmother in southern California. He is an advertising executive who has just established his own firm and she is a talented commercial artist. Both are on vacation. A week later it's romance and love. When they go to tell Grandma of their engagement, Marcia learns that she has been trying to ruin her Sandy is hurt when she calls Los Angeles before telling her grandmother of their love.

CHAPTER 7

"LET ME kiss you, Sandy," Grandma said promptly on hearing the news of the engagement. "I'm proud that we're to have you in our family. I couldn't have chosen better myself!" She smiled mischievously as they both recalled that events had, indeed, been in her own hands until that time. "But what's the trouble? You're not jealous of Marcia's job, already? You know that's been her only love for so long, it's going to be hard to wean her away from it. Patience, it takes—and a heart full of love."

If Marcia had stepped into her role properly at that moment, the clouds would have passed. But when she bounded out into the little sun porch, her eyes were flaming with excitement, her head high in pride.

"Old Abe is trying to land a big account and he wants me to rush back and work up the art and even campaign from state to state, and I begin right away," she cried, happily. "Why, Sandy, I can go back with you!"

She turned joyfully to the man, then stopped as if she'd been hit. "What is it—aren't you glad for me? Isn't everybody glad on this beautiful day? I get a real plum of an assignment, and the Only Man . . . all in one afternoon!"

"It's too . . . too divine," he mused in a sarcastic tone. "Your job, then me. Is it because I'm a jealous cuss, and anything that comes between you and me—well, if it were a man I'd know what to do. But this—"

He spread his hands helplessly, then dropped his voice to a tone of pleading. "Come along, honey. Call up the old buzzard, and tell him you need this time to yourself, to get ready for our wedding day."

"But, Sandy, I can't. Why, this is the chance I've been waiting for. It means everything—"

"EVERYTHING, eh?" He lashed out at that, pacing the room nervously. "So that's the way it is," he continued, working himself into a frenzy.

"Marcia, you don't know anything about love except what you put in your gash-darned ads," he burst out indignantly. "You just turn it on when old Abe says 'allure' or 'romance'. You're probably the one who thought up the idea that 'He was fascinated until she opened her mouth'—"

"And that's about enough from you. You opened your mouth too far that time, my fine feathered friend. You'd better fly home, before I get George's shot gun and punture your eye!"

Sandy grabbed his hat and without a backward glance stalked out of the bright little room and then started on a fast dogtrot down the roadway.

"Sandy behaved like a school-boy," Marcia said a minute later, after she could collect her wits. "If he'd just held on for a minute we would have straightened the whole thing out. He can't expect me to fall into his arms like an overripe apple. Why, dozens of girls keep on working after they're married."

"Yes, but Sandy hasn't loved any of the dozens he has met," Grandma said sensibly. "He wants just one special woman, to fit his particular ideals of a wife."

"Well, he can't put me up on a pedestal with a lot of old fogies. What a 'bust' I'd be!" Marcia laughed rather feebly. "If he'd waited to talk it over sensibly, I might—no, to be honest, I don't think I would have given up this chance to handle that Char-Ming account. I've had my eye on it for a year, and there's no reason I should forfeit it now. That isn't my idea of love, real love."

"Why, Sandy, I can go back with you."

Marcia, still in her riding clothes, was seated on the window seat, her hands nervously rumpling her bronze locks. Her grandmother, watching her lovingly, shook her head in despair.

"Love very often is demanding, my dear. You have to sacrifice something in order to keep it, for Cupid is a fickle fellow. He flies out the window just as fast as he flies in. Maybe faster."

"But, Grandma, I wouldn't mind sacrificing something if it were necessary. But this isn't. Sandy is just selfish, or jealous, and neither is a worthy emotion."

Marcia didn't stop to think that her own ambitions weren't exactly unselfish. She wouldn't need the money, nor would the glory do her any special good, once she was married. It was the new problem of home versus the adventuresome exciting life of business, and Marcia wasn't yet ready to settle down.

Observing that her grandmother was seriously upset over the trend of events, Marcia walked slowly upstairs and decided to call a truce—to go to see Sandy and tease him out of his stubborn mood.

Whistling through her teeth, she turned on the shower and stepped gingerly beneath the cold spray. The immersion seemed to clear her brain of the turmoil of the sudden quarrel, and she vigorously scrubbed her back with the long-handled brush while she formulated her "armistice address."

"Now, my husband-to-be, we mustn't be hasty. Give little Marcia her fling and—"

No. Not a fling. It was something more serious than that, she realized when she tried to analyze her emotions. She'd spent a lifetime preparing to win her spurs in advertising. It wasn't just a game or a pleasant pastime. It was a profession, something that held serious ideals and offered her a real chance to express herself. With her thoughts marshaled in neat little lines, Marcia dressed carefully, then headed the imaginary procession for the camp where Sandy was quartered.

Rounding the corner where the makeshift camp was established, she heard a screeching of brakes and yipping of frightened dogs. Then the low-slung gray roadster tore out of the clearing and churned up the dust as it raced toward the boulevard.

"And that's that," Marcia said deliberately, undecided whether to give way to the sense of heart-break or to bitter anger. Heart-break was so futile, so defeated, and Marcia at heart was a fighter. She raised her head high, whirled on her heel and raced back to the bungalow. Its peaceful beauty was a sort of mockery, and quickly she resolved to surprise old Abe by her promptness and to go back to the city that night.

"I'm disappointed, but I'm not surprised," said Grandma, when Marcia told her plans to leave immediately. "Of course, there's nothing more to do here, and a broken heart will do as well in Los Angeles."

"Broken?" That's a laugh. Why—"

Marcia began with false bravado, until tears blurred her eyes. Then abruptly, "You're all right, Grandma. And I really have work to keep me busy in town, so busy that maybe I'll forget Sandy."

"Well, they say 'you can't eat your cake and have it too', but I don't know," said the little old lady. "In this case I almost believe you should take your happiness while you can get it. Love like any other sweet thing, is liable to get stale or be stolen if you leave it too long on the shelf. I'd think twice, Marcia, before I let that nice young man slip away from me. When you finally get around to wanting him, it may be too late."

"Maybe," said Marcia, "but I'm going to try it my way. And as for wanting him—why I want him right now, but not the way he wants it to be."

Quickly, she rushed upstairs and packed her clothes in approved movie star style, throwing dainty silk underthings into her smart bag with no thought for wrinkles or order. It was time that mattered, for she did not want to spend many more hours in the quaint little house that had so many memories. Pushing aside the dainty marquise curtains, she looked out into the yard at Dammit, playing so unconcernedly with a ball. "You darned fool," she muttered softly. "You haven't enough sense to be unhappy. Just eat and sleep, chase a few cats or a few fleas for excitement . . . what a life. Almost as boring as being married," she said bitterly. Then bursting into a paroxysm of weeping, Marcia flung herself on the bed and cried a neat little puddle of tears on the fine linen pillow slip.

Junior Class Entertains Graduates, Other Guests

160 Attend Banquet Held Friday Eve in Memorial Hall

The Memorial Hall auditorium presented a scene of youthful gaiety, Friday evening, when the junior class of Circleville high school entertained the members of the senior class at the traditional banquet.

The rainbow hues of the dainty gowns offered an ever-changing picture as the guests enjoyed the dancing during the late evening hours. The hall was decorated to represent a vineyard, trellises of yellow crepe paper from the balcony to the floor, separating the dance floor from the portion of the hall used as the dining room. Clusters of purple balloons were used to form the bunches of grapes.

A false ceiling of fringed festoons centered with a large drop-light pierced in a fanciful design, completed the decorations of the room. The background for the orchestra was formed of white screens with scroll designs showing a backing of black, with a center panel of silver. The small tables, were centered with vases of American Beauty rosebuds, the senior class flowers.

The place-cards were folders cut to form bunches of grapes, hand decorated by the committee from the junior class, comprised of Arabella Thorne, Daphne Elliott and Betty Colville.

A three-course dinner was served at 7 o'clock by the members of the American Legion auxiliary. Immediately following the dinner, James Moffitt, president of the junior class, who served as "master of ceremonies," gave the address of welcome to the senior class. Miss Jessie Dresbach, president of the senior class, voiced the response of the seniors. The presentation of the officers of the senior class and the members of "Who's Who," followed. Mrs. Howard Moore, member of the board of education, offered a toast. Miss Margaret Mattinson, of

STOOGES ELECT PHILIP L. MOORE NEW PRESIDENT

Philip Moore was honored by fellow Stooges Tuesday, May 26, when he was elected president of the Stooge club for the 1937-38 term.

Philip, a junior, son of Mrs. Howard B. Moore, has been prominent in the high school for his technical staff work in high school dramatic production. He is also a member of the senior band.

His supporting officers are Dick Mader, vice-president; Frank Barnhill, secretary; Johnny Neggle, treasurer; and Dave Jackson, sergeant-at-arms. Virgil M. Cress will continue as the club's advisor.

Both Mr. Cress and the retiring officers are to be congratulated on their fine year of leadership, they are Raymond Adkins, president; Arthur Thorne, vice-president; Dick Mader, secretary; and Dave Jackson, treasurer.

In the past school year there have been many extra activities for which the Stooges should be given credit.

The most important of these is the project begun by the Stooges this spring for night game lights and additional bleachers on the athletic field. The annual benefit dance was a big step toward securing the lighting system planned.

Last fall the club was responsible for the Dada Day celebration at one of the football games. Red and black high school flags were made by the Stooges with the help of the home economics department. These flags are flown in front of business places in town on days when high school athletic teams are engaging in contests at home.

Shortly before Christmas vacation, the Stooges sponsored a Christmas carol sing in the halls in which all pupils took part. The club also sponsored buses for pupils to go to the out-of-town basketball games.

The Stooge club without a doubt is one of the most progressive units in Circleville High School.

EMS COMPLETES AN ACTIVE YEAR

This year the three outstanding feats of the Epistolary Mu Sigma have been: a play, In the Spring, A Young Man's Fancy, presented in a high school assembly, an educational tour in Columbus; and, the annual scandal sheet.

Jessie Dresbach is the president supported by vice-president, Wahnie Barnhart; and secretary-treasurer, Ruth Robinson.

Madeth Bach was appointed chairman of a committee to call together the club at the beginning of the new school year for the election of officers. Other committeemen are Ruth Clark and Dorothy Newland.

This club is an honorary English society. To become a member one must have an average of not less than 3.5 in the previous years English grades. There were twenty members six seniors, five juniors, and nine sophomores.

Roy Bowen is advisor.

PHILIPS RECEIVES MEDAL AS COMMERCIAL PRIZE

Circleville high school's commercial department had had an unusually active school year.

In the district tests held in April, Betty McGinnis placed fifth and Ruth Robinson eighth in first year typing. Betty Weiler received second place in second year typing and Dorothy Newland placed first in first year bookkeeping.

Eleanor Ryan and Virgil Cress are the commercial teachers.

No definite plans have been made by Miss Rains, Miss Brown, and Virgil Cress.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

NO HAND IS SIMPLE
FUNDAMENTALS have to be observed even on the simplest hand, or grief can ensue. About the most important mistake that a declarer can make is to do things in the wrong order—that is, to do something first which should be done later.

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North's opening bid was 1-No Trump, which East passed and South called 3-Spades. After North's assist in that suit, South went to 6-Spades.

The declarer, ordinarily a very fine player, saw immediately that the contract was perfectly safe, for the hand contained only two losers in diamonds, one of which could be tossed on a high club.

With this wealth of high cards, he got careless and proceeded to make his contract in the wrong way. He won the opening lead of the diamond K with his diamond Ace, cashed his club Q, led the club 5 to the club Ace, and then the club K, with the idea of tossing one diamond loser away. East thereupon trumped the club K, forcing South to overruff, and after that there was no possible way to get rid of the two losing diamonds.

The very simple procedure was to have drawn trumps first and then planned for the discard of the diamond on the club K. All of which proves that even the finest players in a careless moment can toss away a sure contract with as great ease as the average player.

ATION'S BUILDING INDUSTRY ENABLED TO COVER SMALL FIELD HOUSE

Marketability of House Aided Adequate Bathroom Space

Ideas of bathrooms have changed in the last two or three years, both as to the number and the finish and equipment of the rooms themselves. Houses that are otherwise sparsely livable and structurally sound lack sufficient modern conveniences to be eligible for financing under the terms of the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration. Frequently the money spent on adding a bathroom or making over an old one will come back many-fold by making the house more marketable. Many old

FLORIDA RESIDENTIAL PERMITS AVERAGE 42

MIAMI, Fla.—Building officials have announced that the construction value of permits issued in this area from the first of the year through April 30 total $7,240,522. Residential permits have averaged 42 a week during that time, officials said.

Wide Market Available For Homes

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29.—By popularizing the application of the principles of installment selling to the home building field, through the amortized mortgage, the Federal Housing Administration has enabled the residential building industry to engage in comparatively large-scale operations and to tap, for the first time, the market for small houses costing less than $5,000.

Because the Insured Mortgage System does make possible large-scale activities in the subdivision field, the Federal Housing Administration must limit its approval to those neighborhoods for which there is an immediate and definite demand. Only in this way can it exert a proper influence in preventing overproduction and over-expansion.

Insurance Limited
The position of the Federal Housing Administration may seem anomalous to some people. It must be remembered, however, that the insurance of mortgages is limited, under the terms of the National Housing Act, to those projects which are economically sound. The insurance of loans in neighborhoods which are not ripe for development—for which there is no immediate demand—would not be sound procedure, and such projects are, automatically, eliminated from consideration.

While some people may feel that the Federal Housing Administration is stifling the natural growth of the building industry by exercising this influence over the development of new subdivisions, the subdivision activities of the Administration are, in reality, a definite stimulus to the sound development of home construction activities.

Aiding Industry
The administration is aiding the industry to regain the confidence of the buying public which was destroyed during the 1920's, by the activities of "jerry" builders and land speculators. By proceeding cautiously in its approval of new subdivisions, and withholding its approval until they are ready for orderly development, the administration discourages the type of activities which so nearly destroyed the confidence of the buying public in the integrity of the building industry.

By the same means it reduces the possibility of unethical competition and aids ethical builders to operate without fear of this type of competition. For these reasons the administration is holding firmly to its policy of "making haste slowly." It realizes that the building industry must progress carefully if it is to regain the confidence of the buying public.

COPPER, BRASS SALES INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Sales of copper and brass tubing during the first quarter of 1937 are estimated at 35,000,000 pounds, according to the Journal of Commerce, a record over any preceding year. The fact that building figures as a whole for the same period represent less than the total for 1929 and yet the usage of copper and brass tubing has increased indicates, the Journal believes, that builders are using more permanent materials to meet the new demand for standard construction in houses.

Questions and Answers

Q. Every time we have a heavy rain the water seeps through the concrete block foundation of our house and causes a damp unpleasant condition in the cellar. Can you suggest some way this can be corrected from the inside? We whitewashed the walls hoping this would correct it, but it does not.

A. Waterproof your cellar from the inside by cleaning down the walls, removing all whitewashing and leaving the blocks exposed, then have a coating of metallic waterproofing placed on the inside of the wall with a 3/4-inch coating of rich cement plaster about 1 to 3 mix. If the floor leaks as well, this treatment should be carried across the floor in one continuous operation. This work should be done by experienced operators so it would be advisable to employ a firm that makes a specialty of it.

Q. How should a new hard pine floor be finished?

A. This depends on the type and use to which the floor is put. Before any finish is applied, the floor should be properly planed or sanded. If the floor is to be darkened to harmonize with the furnishings, a penetrating stain should be applied. The stained floor should dry and be kept free from dust for 24 hours before varnish or wax coats are applied. If the floor is to have hard usage and is flat-grained, a good floor varnish should be used. If it is comb-grained, it can be stained, filled, and waxed, or it can be finished with a floor varnish as described above. Pine floors may also be painted, preferably with at least two coats and then waxed.

Q. Can anything be done to stop the decay of wood once it has started to rot?

A. Only the complete removal of the rotted wood can save the remaining wood. If the decay is caused by dry rot which is a fungus that will spread, the infected wood must be cut out completely and destroyed. When the decay is caused by dampness, after the rotted wood is removed and replaced. The cause of the dampness should be stopped or only wood treated with preservatives should be used for replacements.

Q. My bathroom wall is plastered and we want to finish it with tile. Is it necessary to remove the plaster first?

A. Yes. All the plaster should be removed to the height of the tile. The tile should only be applied on a good grade of metal lath over wood stud partitions. If the walls are of masonry, the entire surface should be cleaned preferably with a chemical before attempting to apply the tile.

Q. The flue from my kitchen coal stove will not draw. It connects into the main furnace chimney flue which is plenty large enough to dispose of smoke from both. Something must be wrong. Can you tell me what it might be?

A. Your trouble lies in the fact that you have connected your kitchen flue into one already used. It is against the principles of good chimney construction to connect more than one opening into each flue. To avoid your difficulty, a separate flue must be constructed, either in a new chimney, or in a corbelled upper portion of the present one, or if the present main flue is very large, it may be possible to divide it into two separate flues. It is advisable to consult a competent heating man.

Bracing of Home Carefully Checked by F H A Officials

When a home is being built in a part of the country subject to violent windstorms, the bracing of the house is of particular importance. It is always carefully checked by Federal Housing Administration inspectors when the financing is under the Insured Mortgage System.

Proper bracing of a frame building is most important. If the exterior walls are to be sheathed, they may be braced most effectively by putting the sheathing in diagonally and thoroughly nailing it to the studs. Such placement of the sheathing is two to four times as effective as horizontal sheathing. Long, continuous braces let into the faces of the studs and thoroughly nailed to them will increase the rigidity of a horizontally sheathed wall to such an extent that it will compare favorably with a diagonally sheathed wall. Braces cut on a bevel and nailed in between the studs on a line are not so effective as continuous braces. If used at all corners, however, and made as long as the let-in braces, they will increase the rigidity of a horizontally sheathed wall about 50 percent. So-called "bridge" or "herringbone" bracing placed at mid-story height does not increase the rigidity of a wall to an extent which would justify the expense of putting it in for this purpose.

Wood lath and plaster is more rigid than many types of sheathing or sheathing and bracing. Under normal conditions plaster may furnish all the rigidity required for most purposes. However, as the plaster begins to crack from shrinkage, settlement, or other causes the rigidity of the sheathing comes more and more into play. Thus, in violent winds or earthquakes, it is the sheathing and bracing that become all important in preventing complete destruction. It is logical, too, that slightly more bracing than is needed to resist ordinary distorting influences will in the long run more than pay for itself through diminishing, if not entirely eliminating, maintenance costs that result from the structure getting out of alignment.

It is also important that the building be thoroughly tied to resist the thrust of the rafters. When it is not feasible to tie the building together at the foot of the rafters, the thrust may be transferred to the end walls by a system of diagonal bracing on the

Plaster walls in a new house should not be finished for several months if they are to dry thoroughly. Because the frame of a house settles and shrinks during the first few months, cracks will show up in the best job of plastering, and these will be accentuated if the walls are finished.

Damp spots are likely to appear when the moisture forces itself from the plaster, and if the surface has been finished they will have to be retouched, resulting in spotty walls. Paper will peel and discolor when the plaster has not been dried thoroughly.

Construction is carefully checked when a house is financed under the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration, but the finishing of the walls is left to the discretion of the owner.

COLOR NOTE ACCENTS MODERN FURNITURE

Many pieces of the light-hued modern furniture have touches of paint decoration along the edge of the top of a bureau or bed, on the handles of a chest of drawers, etc. In decorating the bedroom in which this furniture is to be used the color is carried out in the trim, using off-white or a light tint for the walls.

The choice of many interior decorative effects may be made by the prospective owner of a home financed under the insured mortgage plan of the Federal Housing Administration.
